Experience

We saw two supernatural/celestial beings on the mountains while motorcycle riding

I posted here a few weeks ago about a demonic encounter I had when I was 16. I've had ptsd since. However, I'd like to include that I've seen good things too. Not everything in this world is scary. Also—if my experiences have taught me anything, it's that the theory of opposites is real. Aside from religion, or spirituality, if there is anything you can believe in, it's balance. Everything has an opposite. If this subreddit focuses on mostly the dark experiences, I assure you, light experiences exist too. I have a few I'll share:

I ride motorcycles. I used to ride a ton on the street. About 7-8 years ago, I was riding with a boyfriend through the Catskills mountains in upstate New York. We were on separate bikes. The roads were unknown to us, as we were on a weekend getaway with each other. We took turns taking them lead through twistys (all the windy single lane roads through the mountains), being conscious of speed limit so we knew what turns would look like when they were blind. We didn't have plans to sleep anywhere—we were spontaneous and agreed on finding a bed and breakfast along the way at some point. There were a few close encounters that day, where cars would harshly break before a mountain turn, and we would have to brake abruptly or swerve. There were a few times (he was a beginner), that boyfriend would go wide on a turn and drift into the opposite lane accidentally, barely missing a car. Although we weren't reckless, it's always dangerous on single road blind turns.

Anyways. Back to the story. It was getting dark. Too dark. Not completely night yet, but around the time that the sky turns a cool purple and you can see the stars shimmer through the pastel skies. It's hard to see at this time. We started having more close encounters due to the lack of sight. I was starting to feel uneasy but wanted to get to the bottom of the mountain. I was in front, there were no cars ahead of us, and we were downhill coming onto a 15mph blind right turn on the mountain. And then I saw them.

Two extremely tall pillars of foggy light, neatly parallel to each other, moving gracefully across the road and up into the trees. They were not shaped as people or anything. If I were to compare them to anything, they looked like artwork of the late twin towers when people make them out to look like fallen memories. They were maybe about 60 feet tall (as tall as a tree) and I would guess maybe half a car lane wide each. Not sure of diameter, but they looked like towers of glowing fog. The way they moved was hauntingly beautiful. They disappeared (misted out) once they climbed up the hill next to the road into the trees. Everything lasted maybe 5 seconds but felt forever. They were ahead of us enough where we didn't actually ride through them. They were already up in the trees by the time we passed them.

I think they were angels. As soon as I saw them, I slowed down, so the boyfriend did as well behind me, and I felt an immediate sense of urgency to find a place to sleep at night and stop riding. We pulled over a few minutes later and the first thing he said when his visor lifted was "did you see that too?" So I know it wasn't only me.

We both weren't very religious, but we agreed that whatever that was, was telling us that it was time to stop. I had the immediate thought of my angels or whatever that was telling me "we've protected you this far but this is it. Now it is time to rest."

We found a bed and breakfast nearby and stayed for the night.

Whatever that was, those two pillars, I didn't feel like they were mean at all. If anything, I knew they were protecting me. Anyways, I have another angel story from when I was a kid but I'll post about it another day. I tend to make these long when I don't mean to. Sorry for the long read.

Question. Has anybody experienced anything similar? A sense of protection or sign or an intuitive thought in your head that you knew came from something good?

Thanks

I don't really know if this is the right place to post this. Do you know if any other subreddit for it?

Same pretty much. I think it was an angel. No wings or anything like that. More like a person that showed up when my family
