Unexplained A long list of unexplained events. (self.Paranormal)

submitted 2 months ago by Deconstrucionism

This is going to be a fairly long post. I want to just finally lay it all out somewhere, and see what anyone makes of this. I'm not "bothered" by it, for obvious reasons, but it fills me with extreme curiosity as a very agnostic person.

Ever since I was a child, odd things have happened. Not particularly scary things, just odd. As a very young kid I always had trouble sleeping, and my mother frequently reported that I at 2-5 years old would often point in the air above my crib/bed and try to get her to 'see the shinies/sparkles'. I was very annoyed/agitated that she couldn't see them. I don't personally remember this. The most dramatic incident was apparently once when I was sick so she was sleeping with me, and she woke up to me talking to whatever I was seeing. I always described them as sparkles/lights and would point at them in the air with my finger almost like they were flying around.

The earliest I myself remember was when I was starting about 7-8, in a new house, constantly seeing this teardrop-like shape that was mostly transparent and hovered extremely low to the ground. It would usually go in a circle, like it was floating in a loop. I never felt threatened by it, and would watch it for long periods of times. I could only ever see it with the lights off, as it was a very pale whitish color.

As a tween/teenager, my parents began to notice more strange events. They'd wake up in the middle of the night and find random objects moved between their bedroom and bathroom, which they'd often trip over in the middle of the night. Keys going missing and being found in really strange places (the back of sock drawers, the kitchen sink). Alarm clocks having their alarm turned off, even after being replaced with a new one. Particularly, any time there was a lot of tension in the house, either between my parents or between them and me, these incidents seemed to escalate dramatically. Their bedroom door locking itself in the middle of the night, electronics outright not working, etc.

It all stopped as soon as I moved out to go to college.

Over the past few years living on my own, I've had several additional strange incidents. I was once crossing the street when the hood of my hoodie was pulled over my eyes, hard, like a friend might do to mess with you. I stopped to try to get 'whoever' it was to stop, but there was no one there. Then a truck ran the red light where I would've been if I'd kept walking in my right-of-way. Friends suddenly calling me that they "had a bad feeling and wanted to talk to me" after something bad had happened that I refused to tell anyone, as I have a bad history of insisting on being alone with issues even if I can't handle them.

Occasionally my items move, too. Or i'll lose things and then they show up in a really obvious, impossible-to-miss spot. Nothing about this scares me, especially since it's saved my life twice now in very different ways. But it's all very, very odd.

Any advice/explanation/etc would be loved.

Ancestral holy souls or saints (i.e. relatives in purgatory or Heaven) would be my best bet. Guardian angels exist and do things, but have a much broader view so they often make their protective moves long before the problem is upon you. Saving you in-the-nick-of-time is ancestors' business.

I was adopted, and am not biologically related to my parents in any way. Does this play any role in how ancestor spirits function in relation to an individual? For instance, would they be associated via bloodline exclusively, or could it also be something related to one of them protecting their child (but being strangely hostile towards them)?

Good question. A mix of both, probably (there's no reason why not)? It would explain the unusual hostility.

I am not really a believer in the whole heaven and hell stuff but it seems you do have an angel or something similar. It seems to be looking out for you but also gets bored and fucks with you. Or it is annoyed that you are not an actual believer either. If I was you I would go to church for a month or two speak to a priest about it maybe he has some answers. And I think the actual going to church thing would bring some kind of reaction from the angel/thing. I hope you find this useful. Very interesting either way thanks for sharing.

I was raised Christian, and my parents still are. I did believe when I was young, at least to some extent, and just no longer do.

It does seem to be some sort of guardian, or at least something that likes me for some reason, but

I feel like if it was 'angelic' it's very chaotic/pestering attitude towards my parents wouldn't make much sense.

Well I would still recommend what I said someone spiritual will be able to help you more than I can I think. It's worth exploring to me anyway. Whatever you do. Definitely do not do a ouija board that thing is some kind of dark magic.

You have a guardian angel with ADD? Lol All jokes aside, I have no logical or reasonable explanation for any of these occurrences. But those are very interesting.
