Advice

ghost or demon(?)

following me (self.Paranormal)

submitted 2 months ago by harleykalo

to start this story off i lived in the ghetto for a while with my dad and my step mom (and my little sister but she comes in later) ever since my dad moved into that house i've had weird experiences like scratching on my closet door but anyways he married my now step mom and she had experiences too but once my sister was born things got worse.

i would wake up and see people standing over my bed, butterflies flying into my pillowcase, which seems nice but i'm actually terrified of them, and even her toys would turn on by there self. but one night in particular i woke up and saw a strange man standing over my sisters crib (we shared a room) just looking at her.

we eventually moved houses and i went to my friends house and we played the ouija board and i was asking it questions that had answers she didn't even know. i asked if the ghost is attached to one of us and it said me. i then asked if it was one in my old house and it said yes. i asked if it was the man standing over my sisters bed and it also said yes. he said that he's a demon but attached to me because he likes me and my family.

when i got home though strange things would happen. a piece of stone that was CEMENTED into one of the living rooms walls fell out in a odd way. my dad watched it happen and told me "it came out, stopped for a split second, then fell and shattered into the floor". another strange incident was a toilet flushing by itself. but that's not the creepiest. me and this "demon" have created some sort of friendship and communication way. i hear taps in my room and that's his way of telling me he wants to talk. one tap means yes and two taps means no.

one night i felt very heartbroken i said "when is the person that's meant for me going to come" because i normally just talk to myself to kinda calm me down and next thing ik i hear a tap right next to me and a man with a very scratchy voice whisper in my ear "he's coming". a month after that i found my boyfriend and the activity has calmed down a bit

Be careful with the whole "liking" thing. Demons can be fond of people/families but that just means they're the last to be food. Its ultimate goal will always be to dominate you.

If you want to test it, go ahead, ask it if it knows my name. If it responds correctly, loudly claim that it is no longer welcome there and to leave you and your family alone, and then cease any contact with it and never acknowledge it when it tries to get your attention. If it wont help, smudge apartment or seek spiritual assistance. If it misses and does not provide information, just in case check with psychiatrist as it was already suggested. Actually, I'd start with that. It's good to eliminate natural first before you jump to supernatural, especially if natural could be more harmful in the long run, and visual and audio hallucinations could be.

So it is very common when you are in bed between sleeping and awake to have visual and audio hallucinations. (The Old Hag comes to mind ) It can be a part of sleep paralysis or you can feel like you are completely lucid. Generally the human mind has quite a large ability to alter your perception of events. It can literally add/subtract things from your vision, or make you see or hear people. It is quite common.

Generally though these sort of things are attached to some kind of trauma or loss, which makes the mind generally a little bit tired and drained.

It might be beneficial to see a psychiatrist or talk to a friend about either these events or just your life in general. You might find they subside and dissappear after a while.

Hmmm, you seriously need to stop communicating with this entity. What you are inadvertently doing is making it stronger. Im forever pulling people out of stuff that started innocently. Get into your bible and begin with repenting. Never once have I seen anything but darkness come from an ouija board. Its a direct line to the underworld & everything it tells you is to their advantage as they seek a way for destruction. I guarantee you the tapping and communication isnt just any spirit, its dark. Usually reading and understanding books of the bible and asking for protection will be enough to get it to go. If you have any relationship with God, there is nothing stronger ever. Good luck.

I agree with this 100%!, u/HuntingTheHaunting

OP, the more you communicate with it, the more power you give it to royally screw with your life! I have no doubts that’s exactly what is trying to do! You need to research Spiritual warfare....specifically research Demonic Infestation, Demonic Oppression, and Demonic Possession.

Scratching in walls or closets or doors is a significant sign of demonic infestation. Now that it has you communicating with it and trusting it, it will likely start to isolate you and break you down, which is significant of demonic oppression.

Also, in regards to what you were told when using the Ouija board....it is very common for demons to communicate on the Ouija board, because by using the board/talking to the dead, you are actually inviting it into your life and giving it permission, thus much more power to carry out its mission. A demon will most of the time portray itself as a victim or a child.....because those are less threatening entities. Also, demons often lie and twist the truth. It does not like you and your family. Demons hate mankind. It's either going to use you to carry out it's mission, or it's going to break you down and try to get you to commit suicide, or it might attempt to possess you.

Hey, It can't hurt you. Maybe turn on the hall light or a lamp. To make you feel comfortable.

Seems like something you may want to stop giving so much attention to. Very interesting tho.
