Unexplained Odd droning from outside my window(self.Paranormal)
submitted 2 months ago by MrZeasel

Just this morning I had a very strange thing happen, before I start I think it would be good to preface what things I have in my room that would make noise. In my room I have a mini fridge and computer, pretty average. However around 3:20 a very deep buzzing/droning was coming from behind me, where my window is, and to my right where the second window of my room is. I can tell with certainty that it came from these positions as well that it did not sound like my computer nor mini fridge. I am also in a fairly rural area with little to no traffic around this time, this noise terrified me and I found myself paralyzed in fear. I still have no clue what it could be, furthermore several minutes earlier before 3:20 a faint animalistic sound came from outside that got the attention of my dog for around 3 minutes as she stared at the window to my right with her ears propped up, I really have no clue what happened but I froze up and couldn't move and so did my dog as she did not move for those entire 3 minutes. Just now my dog is very agitated and nervous hiding her face under the blanket. What the hell is going on.

What you're describing sounds similar to sleep paralysis in a lot of ways. It is odd that your dog would also behave strangely if that were all.

It was not sleep paralysis, I have had that in the past but I was able to distinguish I was in sleep paralysis during that. This was not that I was wide awake and able to move I just felt paralyzed in fear and didn't want to move. Thanks for the response.

You need windchimes in case it returns.
